

Regina's Riddles

YOUR TASKS FOR THIS STOP

CLUE #1 · RIDDLE

Where Ships Don't Float

Solve this riddle — it names a real place in this city.

*In a room where logic wages war,
She battles bugs she's fought before.
Each broken thing she learns to mend,
Though the fixing seems to never end.*

*Nearby a door holds secrets grim,
A room best entered on a whim
Of holding breath and moving quick—
The air in there could make you sick.*

*And when the summer sun turns cruel,
Her colleagues sweat—it's not too cool—
Their nether regions, we won't lie,
Emit a scent that makes you cry.*

*Yes, summertime brings certain balls
Whose funk could clear out office halls.*

*A friend once sat among that crew,
Learning ropes and passwords too,
Before she found her present place—
But still recalls that office space.*

*No chair is hers, no desk, no throne—
She wanders daily, seat unknown,
A nomad among the working masses,
Squatting wherever a spot amasses.*

*So find the spot where ships don't float,
Yet still a fleet, and still afloat*

CLUE #2 · TRIVIA

One Room, One Story

In television and film production, there's a term for an episode that unfolds almost entirely within a single, confined location — often written specifically to save money by limiting sets, cast, and shooting days. Some of the most acclaimed episodes in prestige television history use this technique, turning budget constraints into tense, claustrophobic storytelling.

What is this production term called?

ANSWER 01

Where should you go next?

ANSWER 02

What should you look for?

Verify your answers

Once you've filled in both, scan this code. It will confirm your solutions and tell you exactly what to look for when you arrive.

